"I give, devise and bequeath unto my two daughters Lucy Bradshaw [#1234] and Martha Bradshaw [#1233], the tract of land on which I now reside, also my three Negro slaves, Jim, Peter and Viney, with the future increase of the female, together with all my stock, crops, plantation tools, household & kitchen furniture, and any other species of property I possess, to them and their heirs forever.

In the event of the death of either of my said daughters Lucy and Martha, I give and bequeath unto the survivor the whole of the above mentioned property to her and her heirs forever.

Unto my son James Bradshaw [#1231] and his heirs, I release and exonerate from the payment of the sum of [$247] with its interest, which I have paid as his security."

Date written: 10 Feb 1843 (Codicil)

Witness(es): Tilmon E. Jeter, Anderson Cockraham, William G. Butcher, & Davis Allen

Description: "This codicil made . . . for the purpose of more particularly explaining this said, my will and desire is that my two daughters Lucy Bradshaw and Martha Bradshaw should have all my estate of any kind, part & parcel as willed to them in my original will, to which this codicil is annexed as a part of the same, and my will is, that neither of my other children, whether named or not named is to have any part except the [$247] with interest that I have release to my son James Bradshaw, my not naming either of my other children is not to effect this will in any way, or give either or any of them any claim whatsoever to any part of my estate either real or personal."

vs. Henry Jeter, Administrator of Thomas Jeter, deceased { In Ch'y

This day came the parties by their council and the Commissioners heretofore appointed to divide the slaves among the legatees of Thomas Jeter, deceased, having reported that a division in kind cannot be made. It is therefore decreed and ordered that we said Commissioners, or any three of them, after having publicly advertised the same to be on [3 Dec 1798] do sell for ready money to the highest bidder the slaves of the said testator and divide the proceeds arising therefrom in the manner they formerly were directed, to divide the slaves of the said testator and that they return a report of their proceedings to the Court."

p. 247 (6 Dec 1798)

“Oliver Jeter, Joseph Jeter, Presley Jeter, Richard Ligon and Aula (his wife), Onsamus Winn and Frances (his wife), and Dicey Bradshaw [#121/1], which said Oliver, Joseph, Presley, Aula, Frances, and Dicey are children of Thomas Jeter, deceased, also Milton and Matilda Vaughan, infant children of Lucy Vaughn, dec'd (who was a daughter of said Thomas Jeter) by James Vaughn (their father and next friend), also Joshua Chafin, Administrator with the Will annexed of Samuel Jeter, deceased (who was a son of said Thomas Jeter, deceased) vs. Henry Jeter, Administrator of Thomas Jeter, deceased { In Ch'y

On the motion of Peter Edwards and wife by Grief Green, their council, and on hearing the bill of interpleader filed, it is ordered that they be admitted defendants in this suit, and that the interlocutory decrees heretofore entered in this cause, so far as they respect the proportion of Oliver Jeter's part of the said Thomas Jeter's estate and so far as they respect the part of the said Thomas Jeter's estate directed to be allotted to Joshua Chafin, Administrator of Samuel Jeter, deceased, be rescinded and revoked and that the Commissioners appointed by the said interlocutory decree retain in their hands the said two portions subject to the further order and decree of this Court.”

Pittsylvania Co., Camden Parish, Vestry Book (1767-1852)

The Parish

As counties were organized the church parish was also established, of like size with the county.

A group of leading citizens were selected to form a vestry, which not only governed the church but had certain civic duties such as keeping marked all boundary lines and the care of the poor.

When Halifax County and Antrim Parish were organized in 1752, six new churches were ordered to be built, one of which was on Pigg River. Chapels were built on Snow Creek, Potter's Creek and Leatherwood Creek. It is very probable that the Pigg River church and the chapels on Snow Creek and Potter's Creek were all served by the early Pigg River Road. Antrim is the northeast county of Ireland, and some one must have thought longingly of that far off land and named this new Virginia parish for his old home.

Camden Parish

Pittsylvania County and Camden Parish were organized together in 1767. Shortly afterwards young James Stevenson of Williamsburg offered himself as minister for the new parish. Since he was just entering the ministry it was necessary for him to go to London to be ordained by the Bishop there. He entered upon his duties as rector of the parish in 1769, and the vestry at once ordered four new churches and two chapels to be built. The churches appear in the Vestry Book as the Stinking River Church, and Sandy River Church, the Snow Creek Church and the Leatherwood Church, the chapels as Mayo and Stoney Creek. The churches were built at once, sextons were employed, and books purchased.

Lay Readers

In addition to the six churches, nine other points were designated where the church service was to be read every Sunday. On those Sundays when the minister was to be elsewhere, the service was read at churches, chapels, and in private homes when no church was near, by men of the congregation. These men were called lay readers and received a hundred pounds of tobacco a year for their work. It was a part of England's plan of Empire that religion should be carried to the people.

After serving the parish for a year Mr. Stevenson resigned. He is remembered today as being the father of the Honorable Andrew Stevenson, a political leader in Virginia, who was elected Speaker of the House of Representatives and minister to England.

The Glebe

Lewis Guilliam became minister of Camden Parish in 1771. The vestry now purchased 588 acres near the Sandy River Church for the minister's home, called the glebe.

Overseers of the Poor

The Church of England was so closely associated in the minds of the people with the government of England, that after the outbreak of the Revolutionary War they turned from the church and embraced the new faiths of the Baptist and Methodist Churches. After 1778 the Vestry Book no longer had any entries concerning the churches, only those dealing with the poor. Overseers of the poor were now appointed by the court to take over the duties formerly performed by the Vestry, and they kept the records of their meetings in the old Vestry Book until its pages were filled in 1850. And they continued to name themselves the overseers of the poor of Camden Parish. The glebe was sold in 1779 to Epaphraditus White of Halifax County for 5150 pounds, who later sold it to Samuel Calland. It was long known as the Glebe farm. The site is marked today by the Calland-Moorman graveyard.

This day came the complainants by counsel, and E. Bradshaw [#1243 ?] is appointed Guardian for the defendants Saluda Ann, Thomas E., William Edward, Eliza Ann, and Samuel Conrad Bradshaw for the special purpose of defending their interest in this suit, and it appearing to the satisfaction of the Court that there has been due duplication of the order against the defendants . . . and they not appearing and answering the complainants' bill, the Court doth take the same for confessed as to those defts., and this cause this day came on to be heard by consent of the complainants and other defendants, upon the bill answer and exhibits, and arguments of counsel, whereupon the Court doth adjudge, order, and decree that Williamson Dickerson settle an account of his administration on the estates of John and Margaret Bradshaw, dec'd, before Thomas Scott, John M. Williamson, Vincent Philips, John Foster, Samuel D. Burke, and Simeon Walton, who or any two or more of them are appointed Commissioners for the purpose, that the said Commissioners report the same to Court, and it appearing to the Court from the examination of testimony before them, that the land belonging to the estate of John Bradshaw, dec'd, if divided between the complainants and defendants who are his representatives would not be worth to each distributee the sum of [$300]. It is therefore further ordered and decreed that the same Commissioners before named, or any two of them, after having advertised in the neighbourhood for a reasonable time, do proceed to sell to the highest bidder the land in the bill mentioned on a credit of [12] months, and it is ordered that Willis Peller survey the land (by agreement of the parties) . . . That the proceeds of the said sale . . . be divided into [11] parts . . . [distributed to each of the 11 children, or their heirs, of John and Margaret Bradshaw on a per stirpes basis] . . . and that the said Commissioners make report thereof to Court for a final decree.”
